EEN GENIAAL ZESTAL
DOOR ANNE FELDIECHT

ALKMAAR — P. KLUITMAN
EEN GENIAAL ZESTAL
VOOR TRUIK JIEU
ONDER HEDER VAN
JUV SLYTJES.
20

The music that fills the air
Is a symphony of time and space,
A continuous flow, a never-ending cycle,
A dance of notes, a rhythm that never fades.

It moves like a river, ever flowing on,
With each note a wave, a moment of sound.
It carries us away, into realms unknown,
And leaves us with memories, forever young.

So let the music be your guide,
And let your heart sing with pride.
Together we'll journey through life's tide,
And find our way back to the days of old.

18

Aunt spat out her breath in a puff of rage.
"What's your problem, boy, that you have to be so rude to your mother?"

I looked at her, my cheeks flaming with anger.
"I didn't do anything! You're the one who's being ungrateful."

Aunt frowned, her eyes narrowing.
"I'm not ungrateful. I just want to make sure our guests are happy."

I gritted my teeth, my fists clenching.
"Well, you should have asked if we wanted to eat your food!"

Aunt sighed, her shoulders slumping.
"I'm sorry, I didn't mean to offend you."

I nodded, my anger slowly dissipating.
"It's okay. I understand now."

Aunt smiled, her eyes softening.
"I just want everything to be perfect for our guests."

I smiled back, my heart warming.
"I understand. Let's get back to the party."

Aunt nodded, her face brightening.
"That's right! Let's have fun."

And so we did, enjoying the evening's festivities, and all the memories that came with it.
De opmerking van de auteur is niet op het papier zichtbaar. De tekst is niet leesbaar.
right on dinner. And to the man we go, now, who the next time we shall be bound to see. The dinner as that of a man who had been gone on a long, and the dinner was a good one. And we went into the room, and the man was seated at the head of the table. He was a man of middle age, and we could distinguish him by his clothes, as we could distinguish the man before him by his beard.
And we went into the room, and the man was seated at the head of the table. He was a man of middle age, and we could distinguish him by his clothes, as we could distinguish the man before him by his beard. And we went into the room, and the man was seated at the head of the table.
He was a man of middle age, and we could distinguish him by his clothes, as we could distinguish the man before him by his beard.
...
we ask that you do not write in this book while you are in the library. Since this is a public library, we must keep it clean and in good condition for everyone. Please return it to the shelf when you have finished reading.

mammals and birds, because they are the only ones that can fly. The trees in the forest provide food and shelter for many animals. Some animals live in the forest all year round, while others only visit during certain seasons. The forest is a complex ecosystem that supports many different species.

There is a small pond near the forest that is home to many different types of fish and other aquatic animals. The pond also provides a habitat for amphibians such as frogs and salamanders. The pond is a crucial part of the ecosystem, as it helps to regulate the water table and provides a source of water for the surrounding area.

The forest is a beautiful and peaceful place to visit. It is a great place to hike, bike, and explore. You can see many different types of animals and plants as you walk through the forest. The forest is a valuable natural resource that we should all work to protect.

mammals and birds, because they are the only ones that can fly. The trees in the forest provide food and shelter for many animals. Some animals live in the forest all year round, while others only visit during certain seasons. The forest is a complex ecosystem that supports many different species.

There is a small pond near the forest that is home to many different types of fish and other aquatic animals. The pond also provides a habitat for amphibians such as frogs and salamanders. The pond is a crucial part of the ecosystem, as it helps to regulate the water table and provides a source of water for the surrounding area.

The forest is a beautiful and peaceful place to visit. It is a great place to hike, bike, and explore. You can see many different types of animals and plants as you walk through the forest. The forest is a valuable natural resource that we should all work to protect.

mammals and birds, because they are the only ones that can fly. The trees in the forest provide food and shelter for many animals. Some animals live in the forest all year round, while others only visit during certain seasons. The forest is a complex ecosystem that supports many different species.

There is a small pond near the forest that is home to many different types of fish and other aquatic animals. The pond also provides a habitat for amphibians such as frogs and salamanders. The pond is a crucial part of the ecosystem, as it helps to regulate the water table and provides a source of water for the surrounding area.

The forest is a beautiful and peaceful place to visit. It is a great place to hike, bike, and explore. You can see many different types of animals and plants as you walk through the forest. The forest is a valuable natural resource that we should all work to protect.
In een der dienstogenoten was de meubelman, wat ze in de bediening had.
Touche! Here's a trick.

You can make a shaker to make music. Just put a few beans in a small jar and close the lid tightly. Then shake the jar back and forth or side to side. The beans will make a rhythmic sound.

Try it now! What do you hear?